

DR. TED ROTHSTEIN on Sunday at the
SUNSET HILL SHOOTING RANGE

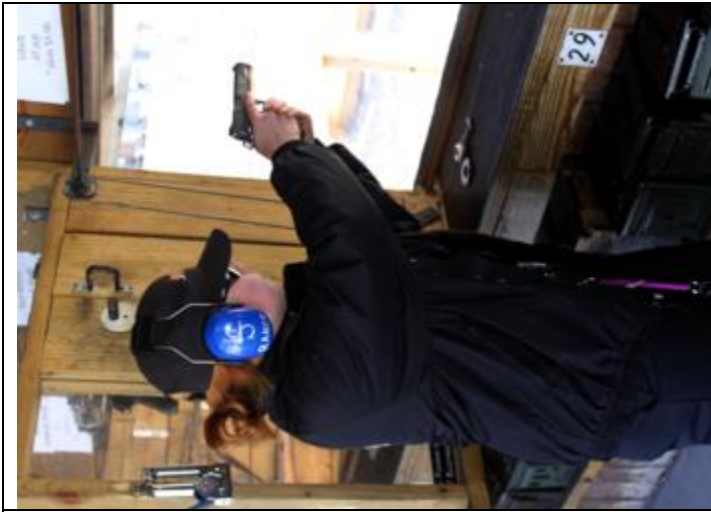

When one of my patient's told me about his experience at a shooting range in Pennsylvania I was intrigued to say the very least. I don't own a firearm and except for owning a BB gun when I was a lad I had never fired one. I would have to say I was seized with desire to know what it felt like to hold and fire a firearm (gun there I said it). My patient had to work that day so I guess I could say he bailed on me. Instead Brandon (middle) came with me and we met his brother Mike and his pal Joey who is producing and directing a film in which Brandon (who is a physical fitness trainer (see his web site)) plays the "heavy" Indeed Brandon is a martial arts expert and was provided with simulated pistols that are amazing to look at. Brandon majored in Philosophy so you have only to listen to him speak for about a minute before you realize that he's a "deep pool" Long story short I satisfied my curiosity. My instructor's name is Esmey. I fired six types of guns. You remember the one Clint Eastwood used when he says "go ahead make my day"? (44 Magnum) Esmey said "No way Dr. Ted, not today maybe with a few days practice you can fire that one. It has recoil that's like being kicked by a horse. I said amen.
